

Victoria CRN

Community Response Network

Working together to respond to and prevent abuse & neglect of vulnerable adults

a workshop on Nonviolent Communication

Join us at:

Westshore Child, Youth and Family Centre
345 Wale Road

Judi Morin has been facilitating Nonviolent Communication (NVC) for 10 years both in prison and in the community. In this workshop she will do an exercise to resolve conflicts. People find it instructive, fun and non-threatening. For the last four years, together with Raj Gill and Lucy Leu, Judi has been working on a Toolkit which includes 74 exercises designed to support learning of NVC. It consists of a 500 page manual plus online downloads and 21 video clips of the more complex exercises. See www.nvctoolkit.org.

Thursday, Sept. 24, 2009
12:00 – 2:00

FREE ADMISSION REGISTRATION REQUIRED

E-mail crnrosa@hotmail.com or call 250-665-7788

Refreshments served

The Community Response Network (CRN), brings individuals, community organizations, & government agencies together to:

- Develop protocols to ensure coordinated support and assistance
- Provide education and training
- Work on prevention and identify issues of concern (e.g. Gatekeeper Gateway program)
- Provide advocacy
- Support ongoing community development and networking
- Increase accessibility to prevention services
- more information see www.bccrns.ca